AS TO DECORATION DAY.
A movement is on foot looking to a more rational observance of Decoration Day, May 30. It has been pointed out, and properly so, that the purpose actuating the setting aside of this day as a holiday was not a festive one. It is the day on which the great public, the public that is nearly always right but that in this instance has drifted into wrong, is supposed to bear in mind the heroes who gave, many of them their lives, and nearly all of them the best years of their lives, to the defense of their country in the civil conflict.

Thousands upon thousands do go, on Decoration Day, to the burying grounds and place upon the graves of the soldier dead sweet, fresh blossoms in token of remembrance. Thousands of others have fallen into the habit of decorating with flowers the graves of their own dead; the children, the wife, the husband that lie under the sod are thus remembered. But the thousands who visit the cemeteries are but a handful when compared with the multitudes that never think of such things. To millions of people Decoration Day is a day devoted to hilarity of any sort and every sort.

Every city has its Decoration Day baseball games, horse races, bicycle races, resort openings and the like. It is there, rather than to the cemeteries and to memorial exercises, that the multitudes throng. And, after all, the public cannot be compelled to do what it does not desire to do. The American people have a theory that, as long as they do not interfere with the lives, liberty or pursuit of happiness of their neighbors they are not accountable to anybody but themselves for the way in which they spend their holidays. For ourselves, we hold the opinion that a sane, quiet celebration of Decoration Day would be wise and proper.

There are other holidays in which the public can indulge its love for recreation to the fullest extent. Decoration Day should not be turned a merry holiday, for when it is it becomes, not Decoration Day, but Desecration Day.

AN UNFORTUNATE ATTITUDE.

The refusal of the czar to meet with a delegation from the Russian parliament is most unfortunate. This delegation desired an audience with the ruler in order to present to him a reply to the speech from the throne. He refused to grant the audience and announced that the reply must be delivered through the court ministry. This is the regular form, and, technically, there can be no criticism of the czar for his course. However, it would have been better if he had granted the audience and started the legislators peacefully on their way. As it is, there will be nothing but suspicion and distrust on both sides.

The duma lacks a good deal of being blameless. It seems to be trying to do everything at the same time. No great permanent reforms are ever accomplished in a hurry. People who got a programme through in the shape in which they want it put it through a number at a time. They do not attempt to rush all the numbers through in the same day or the same week. They are contented to do a little at a time, doing that little well and building their structure up firmly, though gradually, until it reaches the height desired.

The radical programme, briefly, is as follows:

- First—General amnesty.
- Second—The abolition of the death penalty.
- Third—The suspension of martial law and all exceptional laws.
- Fourth—Full civil liberty.
- Fifth—The abolition of the Council of the Empire.
- Sixth—The revision of the fundamental laws.
- Seventh—The establishment of the responsibility of ministers.
- Eighth—The right of interpellation.
- Ninth—Forced expropriation of land.
- Tenth—Guarantees of the rights of trades unions.

The czar is not going to grant all these demands, however moderate they may appear to the radicals. He may grant some of them if the duma goes about the work in the right way but he will grant none at all if an effort is made to crowd him. When the news first came from Russia that the radicals had captured a majority of the parliament there was rejoicing. It appears that this rejoicing was premature. There are apparently too many radicals in the duma. They will defeat their own desires by their obstinate insistence on everything at the same time.

THE END FOR BURTON.

The supreme court of the United States decided yesterday that Senator Burton of Kansas was rightfully convicted of accepting fees for practicing before government departments as a lawyer while holding his position as senator, contrary to the statute in such case made and provided. Burton was paid money by the Rialto company for protecting, or endeavoring to protect it, from a postoffice fraud order. He was convicted upon trial and sentenced to serve six months and pay a fine of $2,500.

If the supreme court adheres to its decision, and there is no reason for believing that it will not, Burton must go to jail like any common felon. He has thirty days in which to petition for a rehearing but it is doubtful if the highest tribunal will consent to go over the case again. Burton is at the end of his rope after a long, hard, desperate fight. Every legal resource was at his command and he failed not to avail himself of all of them. He is undoubtedly guilty or the courts would not have so decreed. There is no possibility of a miscarriage of justice in this case.

The plain people of the land will find some reason for comfort in the relentlessness of the pursuit of Burton. Nor position, nor money, nor influence could avail to save him. Within a short time he will be occupying a felon's cell. What the senate will do remains to be seen. It is reported that if Burton fails to resign at once a resolution of expulsion will be offered. And surely there can be no question of its passage. There are men in the senate, powerful men, who have no business there but a majority of the upper house of congress is composed of able, honorable, patriotic men.

They can, we believe, be depended upon to see that Burton, if he has not the decency to resign, is ignominiously kicked out of the position he has so everlastingly disgraced.

The Standard Oil company very generously furnished free gasoline for the automobiles used in San Francisco for a few days after the disaster—and then raised the price of gasoline a cent a gallon all over the country and got back the cost of the San Francisco donation several thousand times over within a week. Great philanthropist is the Standard Oil company.

When "Bob" Taylor retired as governor of Tennessee in favor of Benton McMillan he declared that he was through with politics forever. Perhaps at that time he didn't think he could be elected to the United States senate. Anyway, he showed that he possessed some symptoms of a mind by changing it.

The tax rate in Portland, where the authority is centered in the mayor, is less than half as heavy as the Salt Lake rate. But Portland has a first class mayor. Fancy the frightful condition this city would get into if Ez Thompson were given full authority to run it.

Once more the senate committee on privileges and elections has postponed its vote on the Smoot case. This time Senator Burrows is ill. It might be added that the country is sick, too, of the Smoot business.

A report says that Bryan, Cleveland and Hobson have said they will not go out after the Democratic presidential nomination in 1908. Uncle Henry Gassaway Davis is yet to be heard from.

The initials of one of the men wanted for Oregon land frauds are S. A. D. The word these letters make will doubtless describe his condition before he is through with the business.

After a ball game played in Washington the other day the umpire had to have police protection. You can have just two guesses as to which team won.

Still, it is something to be able to say you saw the divine Sarah, even if you couldn't understand what it was all about.

SHE HAD OUTSIDE DUTIES.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)
The public-spirited lady meets the little boy on the street. Something about his appearance haunts her. She stares at him in her near-sighted way.
The Lady—Little boy, haven't you any home?
The Little Boy—Oh, yes'm, I've got a home.
The Lady—And loving parents?
The Little Boy—Yes'm.
The Lady—I'm afraid you do not know what love really is. Do your parents look after your moral welfare?
The Little Boy—Yes'm.
The Lady—Are they bringing you up to be a good and helpful citizen?
The Little Boy—Yes'm.
The Lady—Will you ask your mother to come and hear me talk on "When Does a Mother's Duty to Her Child Begin?" next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Lyceum hall?
The Little Boy (explosively)—What's th' matter with you, ma? Don't you know me? I'm your little boy.

Half Price Cloth Suit Sale

The heavy business of yesterday indicates that the values are unusual and recognized as such.

There was early response. All Monday the section was filled with delighted purchasers. One particular feature was the fact that every lady expressed herself as being entirely satisfied with the sale.

The suits are just what the ladies are clamoring for—right in style, high grade in every particular. Pony, Eton and Tailor made.

Made beautifully, of the best and most popular materials, including newest shades and colors.

No trouble to suit you today.

$16.50 for $ 8.25	$35.00 for $17.50
$18.50 for $ 9.25	$40.00 for $20.00
$22.50 for $11.25	$45.00 for $22.50
$25.00 for $12.50	$50.00 for $25.00
$27.50 for $13.50	$55.00 for $27.50
$32.50 for $15.25	$60.00 for $30.00

The suits can be worn late into summer and next fall.

White Linen Parasols will be in vogue this season more than any other color. Some of them double up for suit cases—a most excellent idea. The ponce, red, blue, and other colors and shades are attracting attention. The assortment of blacks is handsome. Full line of colored umbrellas.
